

8.2.33 MedBrief

MedBrief facilitates the secure transfer and review of patient medical records, confidential documents and radiology. It is not an eDiscovery product but can provide significant value when deployed in conjunction with such products, particularly when used in the context of Expert or Counsel review.

Designed for use by both lawyers and medical experts the system can present indexed medical records, confidential documents and radiology all through a single webpage without the need to install any software. It is currently being used in over 8,000 clinical negligence and personal injury matters for firms across the UK together with a number of international mass tort and product recall cases for international clients.

MedBrief will solves many of the issues we all experience in respect of radiology distribution. We will no longer need to send you USBs, file-share links or downloads. Over 6,000 experts, lawyers and barristers are now using MedBrief to review medical imagery. Its latest version is a CE certified viewer accessible from any internet browser and works on PC's, Macs, android tablets and iPads.

MedBrief does not have any local server requirement and as such can be deployed and supported at short-notice into new jurisdictions, beyond a web-browser there is no client side installation.

Please get in contact with us and we'll explain more about what we do and how we might be able to assist you.
